Re: Response to Questions Regarding "Gluten Free" Products

We do not use the wording "Gluten Free" but, we do have items that do not contain any added gluten containing ingredients.

McCain Foods does not use the wording 'Gluten Free' due to the regulatory ambiguity in regards to a definition of exactly what Gluten Free means.

There is a lack of clarity regarding what this term means both from a regulatory perspective as well as a consumer perspective. For example, the FDA has not finalized regulation on this topic, there is a lack of regulatory enforcement to help create/maintain a shared understanding on the topic, and consumers/customers may have different definitions (zero tolerance, 20ppm threshold, made in a plant that does not have gluten, etc.).

However, customers and consumers are encouraged to review our ingredient lists on the packaging, as many of our products do not contain any added gluten containing ingredients. The ingredient statement will identify whether or not there are gluten ingredients or gluten sourced ingredients in the product. McCain enforces strict manufacturing standards intended to minimize the chance of cross contamination. This includes, but is not limited to, the following: GMP's, HACCP Plans, Sanitation Procedures, and an Allergen Control Policy.
